Other changes involved the adding or dropping of specialties taught. The Akmolinsk Railroad-Transport Tekhnikum added the specialty of steam locomotives; the Sverdlovsk added the specialty of construction of civilian and technical buildings; the Leningrad Tekhnikum imeni F. E. Dzerzhinsky added the specialty of subway electromechanical equipment, and the Moscow Tekhnikum imeni A. A. Andreyev dropped the specialty of electric power supply for electric railroads. The Kiev Electromechanical Tekhnikum dropped its specialty of railroad telephone-telegraph communications, added that of signaling, centralized control of switches and signals, and operation of block signals, while the Khar'kov Railroad-Transport Tekhnikum dropped the latter specialty. At the Tashkent Electromechanical Tekhnikum, the specialty of steam locomotives is now being taught instead of that of diesel locomotives.
